

10 OCTOBER 2025 / SF NEWS / JAY BARMANN

Dolores Hill Bomb Didn't Happen This Year, a More Organized Version Set for Twin Peaks skaters are going to be having a fully permitted and organized "hill bomb" event this weekend on Twin Peaks.

You may have noticed, especially if you live near Dolores Park, that there was no skateboarding hootenanny in July known as the Dolores Hill Bomb.

This comes after last year's Hill Bomb was met with a police blockade on Dolores Street, to which the assembled skaters just responded by moving one block over and bombing the Church Street hill instead. And that followed the disastrous 2023 event, when SFPD officers showed up in riot gear and arrested 81 minors and 32 adults — with parents later railing at police for how the teenagers were treated while in custody.

All that police activity came as a result of the rogue event resulting in multiple injuries — including a death in 2020 — and occasional skirmishes with police as the crowd became increasingly hostile to the crackdowns.

Now, as the Chronicle reports, organizer Ciaran Trevino has sold out and caved to authority, under duress. And this year's event, dubbed the Twin Peaks Peaceful Hill-Bomb for Palestine, comes complete with a permit, a "safety briefing," and 25 safety "spotters" who'll be stationed along the route.

It all starts at 2 pm Saturday, October 11, at the Christmas Tree Point parking lot on Twin Peaks. Participants will then make their way

There will then be a rally at Noe and Beaver streets, with speakers and "solidarity messages.

More than 40 Bay Area organizations are reportedly attached to the event, including CODEPINK, Palestinian Youth Movement (PYM), Arab Resource and Organizing Center (AROC), Jewish Voice for Peace (JVP), and Haiti Action Committee.

As Trevino tells the Chronicle, "I was sort of forced into cooperating with police... So I decided I'm going to co-opt the police — all these state resources — to facilitate our inherently anti-capitalist anarchist-tilt event."

And, as Ryen Motzek, a partner at the Mission's DLX Skateshop, tells the paper, the event should be inherently less chaotic because the route is "not straight downhill or super crazy." And, he adds, "It doesn't run right through a residential area with a lot of houses. People won't be just back-and-forth bombing with lots of beer spilling on the ground."

We shall see!

Share this

Comments for this thread are now closed

35 Comments

 Login ▼

Share

Best

Newest

Oldest

R

Richmondman

10 days ago

Boo Hoo. Whining, even when they're getting a better track. Figures.

0

4

M

Me

10 days ago

No one is forced into cooperating with police.

1

4 mrmanhattan

→ Me

10 days ago

I once had my recording studio raided by cops because one of their informants said there was a grow house in the building.

When I opened my door facing 5-7 cop's with automatic multi round shotguns and automatic rifles I cooperated completely,

I was never so happy to be white and unarmed. That and I didn't pee my pants,

3

1

Hugh McAndie → mrmanhattan

10 days ago edited

Where were your pants?

pwned.

0

2 mrmanhattan

→ Hugh McAndie

10 days ago edited

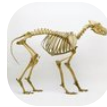

Not in Russia!

You can't even defeat Ukraine!

Hugh McAndie mrmanhattan

9 days ago

I can work for Hillary's campaign.

0 2 lupus mrmanhattan

6 days ago edited

Regardless of criminals, Chechen jihadist mercenaries, and North Korean canon fodder.

0 0 lupus mrmanhattan

9 days ago

Is this in CA?

0 0 lupus Me

9 days ago edited

Actually you are according to state laws. And it has nothing with cooperating because this implies there is some kind of amicable exchange between you and the police. The police in the ideal state function according to state and county laws. When they pull you over for one of the gazillion reasons that exist, you HAVE to produce an ID. I mean, don't f*ck up driving, and you're OK. If you get pulled over, comply. The police are actually doing you a favor pulling you over BEFORE you injure/kill someone. Then you're truly f*cked. Obey the f*cking laws, and work alone or with others to change them if you don't like them. Instead of b*tching.

0 0 Yesss And

10 days ago

Oh finally they're going to do it on Twin Peaks where it belongs

6 0 mrmanhattan

10 days ago

I haven't been on a skateboard since the '70's, (in flat NYC) but when I moved to SF 15 years ago I got a motorcycle (which I also hadn't done since the late '70's) and Twin Peaks was one of my favorite television shows and all I could

Down the memory whole mrmanhattan

9 days ago edited

For a couple of years the kids and I used to get around on kick scooters. One time I put the little one on the front and we bombed down the hairpins on Twin Peaks blvd.

A couple of years back, after telling me about an epic bike ride, I got one of the most satisfying compliments a parent can get.

"Remember that time on Twin Peaks? I credit you with my love of speed*."

*Yes, I know. Haha. Not the drug.

2 0 Hugh McAndie  Down the memory whole

9 days ago

I'm glad they were able to remember something positive.

0 3 Hugh McAndie

10 days ago

The risk of locals purposely sabotaging things with fishing line was too great.

0 4 mrmanhattan Hugh McAndie

10 days ago

Is that how you would do it in Russia?

1 1 Hugh McAndie  mrmanhattan

9 days ago

That's how Hillary's campaign would do it.

0 3 Down the memory whole mrmanhattan

9 days ago

He thinks he's clever, but he's not clever. But when you fall for it and respond in any way, he gets what he wants. And like any dopamine addicted lab rat, it means he'll do it

3 0 Hugh McAndie Down the memory whole

9 days ago edited

Lol@ the Mammary Hole can't take its own advice.

Don't really blame it, deep down even it knows it is a worthless failure.

0 3 coldwarrior

9 days ago

I can't wait! I plan to walk over early to be among the spectators lining the route! I'll be the guy handing out red Solo cups full of tiny ball-bearings for us to throw out on the roadway in front of the advancing peloton of ambition-free-rolling man-children! Yeah, let's fcuk up THEIR day for a change!

0 2 Down the memory whole coldwarrior

9 days ago

"I plan to walk over early to be among the ~~spectators~~ hay bales lining the route! "

That's the official term.

1 0 Hugh McAndie  Down the memory whole

9 days ago edited

They'll put you with the Haaa-aaaay Bales.

0 3 coldwarrior  Down the memory whole

9 days ago

lol

1 0 Hugh McAndie  coldwarrior

9 days ago

coldwarrior → Hugh McAndie

9 days ago

Poor Huge has been outed as the ambition-less man-child he is.

2 0 Hugh McAndie → coldwarrior

9 days ago

Shut up, dweeb.

0 3 coldwarrior → Hugh McAndie

9 days ago

Dance, monkey-man.

2 0 Hugh McAndie → coldwarrior

9 days ago

Shut up, dweeb.

0 3 Hugh McAndie → coldwarrior

9 days ago

Shut up, dwèeb.

0 3 K*Kabogo → coldwarrior

9 days ago

Please save this behavior for bicycle paths, thank you.

0 2 lupus → coldwarrior

9 days ago edited

It's that meanness in you.

1 0 husk10

2 0

R

rick jones

9 days ago

Sucks to be an adult...

0 0 lupus

9 days ago

with parents later railing at police for how the teenagers were treated while in custody.

Not to sound overly critical, but as a middle school teacher, I do have to deal with that sense of entitlement you inspire in your children, and so do admin